A SKY PARLOR BARON

Grunebaum Once New YorkSociety's Pet On His Uppers.

DOWNFALL OF AN ADVENTURER.

Five Seasons Ago He Danced with Mrs. Astor at the Patriarch's Ball, Now He Occupies an Humble Lodging House--Vain Efforts to Exchange a Title for an American Heiress.

New York, March 7 .- The name of the Baron Grunebaum is one very familiar to New Yorkers, especially to those of the fashionable set. Nearly all know of his social successes some years ago, how he was lionized by society, but few knew that the suave and cultured adventurer is living in sky parlors on adventurer is living in sky parlors on the West Side, and has as companions truck drivers and others—very respectable men, no doubt, but hardly conganial companions for one when the Four Handred once delighted to honor. The Baron is as well known in European capitals as in New York, and the stories of his escapades are familiar to clubmen in a dozen cities. He is an Austrian by birth, but a veritable cosmopolitan. Like all adventurers, he has passed through many vicissitudes, but his New York career is perhaps as remarkable as any portion of his history. The baron made his first appearance in New York about five years age. His title and his distinguished manners gave him an entree into the society cir-gave him an entree into the society cir-cles of the Four Hundred. He was fre-quently to be found at the swell clubs, and made such a favorable impression and made such a favorable, impression that he lead the german at the Patriarchs' ball five seasons ago, Mrs. Astor being his partner. He was dined, wined and feted on overy hand, and was quite a society lion. But while he was living in the best New York society, he by no means gave up his questionable habits, and it began to be rumored about the clubs that the baron was a shade too fast even for this rapid city. When he returned to Europe his position in society was not quite as high as it had been, and he seems to have felt that he had made about all he could expect to had made about all he could expect to out of New York.

For some time very little was heard of ne baron. When the Prince de Rohan, For some time very little was heard of the baron. When the Prince de Rohan, another titled adventurer, was sentenced to imprisonment in Paris for swindling a woman of wealth and social position out of a great deal of money, Baron Grunebaum was reported to have been deeply interested in the business, and to have barely escaped incarceration himself. Then, about nine months ago, he turned up in New York again. It is no secret that the baron had expectations when he arrived in America. He has secret that the baron had expecta-tions when he arrived in America. He had met a wealthy New Yorker and his daughter while they were traveling in Germany, and had, with his snave manners and elaborate coat of arms, made an impression upon them. He pretended to fall in love with the young lady, and threw up an imaginary com-mission in the German army in order to marry her.

The Baron came to New York and put up at the Hoffman house. But the heir-ess whom he thought he had captured ess whom he thought he had captured was brighter than the usual run of heiresses, and the doughty Baron's scheme fell through. He tried once more to enter society, and made no secret of his overpowering desire to find a rich American wife, but the character of the nobleman had been pretty correctly estimated by this time, and he found it very difficult to secure even recognition from people who had loaded him with favors a lew years before.

Baron Grunebaum's exchequer had Baron Grunebaum's exchequer had been in rather a depleted condition when he arrived, and it was not replonished with great rapidity. The baron changed his quarters with great frequency. He appeared at the Fifth Avenue, Bartholdi, Imperial and Lenox hotels in succession, but was not allowed to remain very long at any of these hos-telries. It is understood that his dignity was soverely shocked at the Barthol-di by the fact that the proprietor actu-ally withheld his trunks for unpaid bills, and his clothes, which were all he possessed, fell into the hands of his creditors. All his jewelry and many smaller articles of more or less value found their way into the pessession of found their way into the possession of the pawnbroker. Then he suddenly disappeared and was not to be found at any of his accustomed haunts. For some time his whereabouts was the subject of languid discussion and wonder at the clubs where he had once been a frequent visitor. It was believed by many that he had given up in disgust and returned to Europe.

But this hypothesis was incorrect.
The gay and frisky baron has been located. Society, which once petted and caressed him; clubmen who won from or lost money to him (they more often lost), and charming heiresses who were captivated by his distinguished manners and foreign title, will be interested to know that he has made his appear-ance in a very different walk of life, Just in the rear of the Jefferson

Just in the rear of the Jellerson market police court, at the corner of Greenwich avenue and West Tenth street, stands a three-story brick house, the ground floor of which is occupied by a liquor saloon. Over this, in cheap lodgings, is domiciled the Baron Grunebaum. baum at it is somewhat of a descent from a suite at the Imperial or the Lenox to a roof lodging over a gin mill, but the baron has made it. His fellow lodgers baron has made it. His fellow lodgers include a gentleman of the Hebrew persuasion, who describes himself as a broker in second-hand clothing, and who bears the name of Cohen; two truck drivers and a retired hack driver, too old to pursue his calling. All of these men, at least, have been or are engaged in honest work, though they are hardly the companious and fellow lodgers whom one would expect a real bona fide Australy one would expect a real bona fide Austrian baron to choose

What the baron is doing for a living is a mystery. He spends but little time in his room, and is frequently seen in the company of men who are not unknown inside of the big brick building across the street, but his business, if he has any, is unknown to anyone, except these same gentlemen. He still makes an attempt to dress well, and succeeds, taking everything into consideration. Any of his old friends among the Four Hundred who would like to call upon him will find him at No. 120 West Tenth, street, one door beyond the

at having a real live foreign nobleman too ready to give them admittance.

It is not impossible that the Baron Grunebaum will next be heard from through the medium of the Hon.
Thomas Byrnes; that is, assuming that his present run of bad luck continues, even if the tide turns and the adventurer once more has a little good fortune. It is probable that he has made his last appearance in swell Now York tune. It is probable that he mas have his last appearance in swell New York society. He is too well known there,

The Popular Choice Among the Editors of BALTIMORE, MD., March 7 .- A daily paper publishes the personal presiden-

The Virginia Democrats—Cleveland, 18; Hill, 8: Boles, 1. The West Virginia Democrats—Cleveland, 4; Hill, 2; Gorman, 1; Boles, 1. Of seventy-two expresssions of opinion on the issue, all but nine editors replied that the tariff would be the conspicuous feature of the campaign, and of seventy specific expressions of opinion regarding popular sentiment among Democrats in the communities heard from, fifty-six replied that Cleveland was the choice of the people.

The Republican preferences were mainly for Harrison and about half and half between Blaine and Harrison as regards popularity. One editor wants

CUT THE PRAYER SHORT. A Crazy Man Creates a Big Sensation in a Church. Anderson, Ind., March 7 .- "I am the king, and every one of you must pay tribute to me," shouted a crank yesterday as he entered East Lynn church, one of the most fashionable congregations in the city, and strode up the main aisle, brandishing a six-shooter and a butcher knife. The preacher's prayer was cut short, women screamed and fainted and some of the men jumped out of the windows. Six men overpowered the maniae and took him to init. He proved to be Henry L. Lee jail. He proved to be Henry J. Law-rence, a well-to-do farmer, whose mind has been unbalanced by the grip, and by the deartien of his wife. by the desertion of his wife.

Blown Up By Glycerine

WINNIPEG, MAN., March 8 .- This afternoon at Buchanga's Camp, five miles from Parrywood Station, Edward Erickson and Frank Savage, while heating water to wash their clothing, were accidentally killed by the explosion of an apparently empty glycerine can. Erickson thoughtlessly placed the can close to the fire and an explosion followed al-most instantly, killing both men.

"The King Must Own the Highways." New York, March 7 .- Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., preached yesterday about the Reading coal combination. He closed thus:

"But there is a remedy and a day of wrath will come. Let the government assume control of the people's highways and run them in the interests of the and run them in the interests of the people. The king owned the old high-way. The king must own the new highways or the new highwaymen will own the king."

The Handsomest of all Coins.

This proud distinction is generally conceded to the United States' twentydollar gold piece, a marvol of beauty in design and finish. The loveliest of God's handiwork is a handsome woman, if in the bloom of health; if she is not, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will restore her. Ladies who use this peerless remedy are unanimous in its praise, for it cures those countless ills which for it cures those countless ills which are the bane of their sex—irregularities. dragging-down pains, inflammation, hysteria, sleeplessness, and the "all-gone" sensations which burden their daily lives. A tonic and nervine without alcohol.

Vile and Unworthy

Of consideration are nostrums of which it is asscreed-and there are many such-that they cure immediately bodily allments of long standing. There are none such that can. Chronic disorders cannot be instantaneously removed.
Continuity in the use of a genuine medicine, Continuity in the use of a genuiue medicine, such as Hostetter's Stomach Blitters, will eradicate chronic physical evils. Not the loast of these last in the force of its opposition to medicine is constipation, to the removal of which, the peristed in, the Blitters is particularly adapted. Constipation of the bowels is a complaint which should be dealt with early and systematically. So are its usual attendants, liver complaint and dyspepsia. For these, for malaria, rheumatian, kidney trouble, and more recently "in grippo," this highly and professionally commended medicine is an undoubted specific. Nothing can exceed it, moreover, as a means of imparting strength to the feeble and nervous.
